RISK & CHALLENGES

Directing a motion picture is a complicated process; it takes an extensive exercise, and knowledge that requires carefully planning which is used every day that is more than often unforeseen by inexperienced directors. In most of the times it cannot be explained on why the task set so difficult for the studios to complete the production successfully!

However, the studios sets the task difficulties for Director, and his crew is to make sure that both parties understand what the motion picture is about, and the script, so that it is successfully digested to make both the Director, and his crew met all the requirements prior to filming. Now having that been said, in order to make, and complete the entire film successfully that the audience will enjoy while watching the movie in a theater.

The Director has many tasks that requires and assigned to him everyday, not only knowledge, expertise that he already possess in his skills, but also understand the fundamentals to cinematography, by becoming a successful cinematographer on the big screen. Many people claim they can be taught directing, or can become a great actor by going to school however, that may be the case but it has to come from within natural talent and no exceptions can be made, unfortunately you have to understand that nobody is going to pay for something that is completely uninteresting to watch, or just waste the studios valuable money, and time.

I guess to put it in a simple way if you cannot act, or direct, and people tell you that this is not for you please take the advice and understand this is for your own good. This actually helps you avoid embarrassment, and at the same time more than usually will set you on the right path to your career. My honest opinion as a Director only continue to make a motion picture if your audience, or random people you might know actually enjoyed reading your script, and learning more about your production.

As you can see our work here on this project has been very carefully, and detailed put into place in order for you to get as much as information needed about our film. We can assure you that our commitment and completing this film will exceed all of your expectations!
